

INDICTMENT FOR CHAS. PFISTER

Milwaukee Capitalist Accused By Grand Jury
Of Misappropriating $14,000.

GIVEN BY WIS. RENDERING CO.

To Secure Garbage Contract From Council Eight Years Ago--The Charge Is Strongly Denied.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-MORAE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 5.—Charles F. Pfister, Milwaukee's most widely known capitalist, leading politician, friend of the late Henry C. Payne, postmaster general, and political associate of Senator J. C. Spooner, was indicted Friday afternoon by the grand jury, and was placed under arrest at night. He is charged with stealing $14,000 from the Wisconsin Rendering company, which money, it is alleged, had been given him by the company to secure the city contract for garbage disposal.

The indictment against Mr. Pfister sets forth specifically that he received $14,000 to get the council to give the garbage contract to the Wisconsin Rendering company, and that the understanding was explicit that in case he did not use it in that way the money was to be returned to the company.

Witnesses for Prosecution.

The direct evidence against Mr. Pfister was given to the grand jury by F. C. Gross, president of the Wisconsin Rendering company, who as such gave the $14,000 to Pfister to get the garbage contract awarded to his company.

Others, whose testimony was believed to corroborate that of Gross, were Henry J. Killilea, formerly attorney for the Rendering Co. and Chas. Frederick, formerly bookkeeper for the company. Books of the company and also books from the First National bank were taken before the grand jury.

Another important witness against Pfister was William Bigelow, vice president of the First National bank and brother of Frank G. Bigelow, who embezzled $1,500,000 of the funds of the same bank about three months ago.

Is First "Big Fish."

William Bigelow's testimony is believed, however, to have been corroborative rather than direct.

This is the first "big fish" that District Attorney McGovern has landed in the drag nets that have been set by three grand juries. All Milwaukee, except that part that considers itself a part of the "system," believes that the beginning of a great upheaval is at hand.

It is the general belief in Milwaukee that the purpose of Pfister's indictment is to discover, in the trial of the case, how the $14,000 was expended in securing the contract and to whom the various amounts, if any, were paid. Mr. Pfister admits that he disbursed part of the fund and returned the balance to the Wisconsin Rendering company.

Pfister Placed Under Arrest.

Mr. Pfister has been ill in bed for some time, and the warrant for his arrest was served at his bedside. Upon the report of the deputy sheriff who had been sent out with the warrant that the indicted man was too sick to leave his house, the undersheriff and the clerk of the courts went to the Pfister home to serve the warrant and to arrange for his bond without his having to leave the house.

The men were admitted to the residence by a servant and conducted to Mr. Pfister's room, where he was lying in bed, his head propped up with pillows.

Prisoner Is Booked.

It was explained that a bond could be signed there, or that a cash bond could be put up. Before this was done Mr. Knell explained that it would be necessary to "book" the prisoner and in answer to questions Mr. Pfister said that he was 45 years old, single, a manufacturer, and that he was American by birth. Later these facts were recorded on the jail books, the record number of Mr. Pfister being 1,817 of the present year's list of the jail.

Mr. Pfister signed the bail bond and then signed a check for $10,000, the amount of his bail. This was certified to by Mr. Vogel as president of the First National bank. The two officials shook hands with Mr. Pfister and Mr. Vogel and accompanied them to the door.

Makes Public Denial.

Soon after these formalities had been complied with Mr. Pfister issued the following statement and denial to the public:

"The charge, as I understand it, is that I misappropriated moneys entrusted to me by the Wisconsin Rendering company."

"The charge is absolutely false, and has no foundation whatever."

"About eight years ago F. C. Gross, who was president of the Wisconsin Rendering company, placed money in my hands, and I disbursed it years ago according to his directions."

"More than two years since the balance was paid over on Mr. Gross' orders. No dissatisfaction was ever expressed to me by any one, and this indictment is the first intimation I ever received from any person that anything remained unsettled, or that any claim whatever existed or was supposed to exist against me."

OTTAWA RIFLES CARRIED ARMS

Indignity of Going Without Guns.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Boston, Mass., August 5.—The Duke of Cornwall's Own Rifles of Ottawa, passed through here today enroute to Providence and though they did not parade, they were allowed to carry their arms through the streets. When their coming was announced a week ago, much comment was aroused because of the report that they would not be allowed to carry their rifles in the streets of Boston, because of a statute which prohibits. The order was revoked, however, and the visitors, who are to return to be entertained by the Massachusetts militia, were not subjected to the indignity of going through Boston without their rifles.

DELEGATES ARRIVE THIS MORNING

President Roosevelt Succeeded in Formally Introducing Japan and Russian Envoys.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Oyster Bay, August 5.—With a ceremony that was truly magnificent, President Roosevelt succeeded in formally introducing the peace plenipotentiaries of Russia and Japan, who will, if possible, try to reach some conclusion by which the two countries may again resume friendly relations. The delegates left the foot of East Twenty-third street, New York, this morning, the Russians departing at 9 o'clock and the Japanese at 10. The cruisers Chikuma and Tachibana were placed at their service, the Russians using the former and the Japanese the latter. In order not to injure the feelings of either country, the sailing of the battleships were timed so that neither reached the Mayflower before the other, but both at the same time.

President Roosevelt, who went aboard the Mayflower a little before noon, received the delegates of the two countries aboard the yacht shortly before luncheon, which was served aboard. Mr. Roosevelt received each mission cordially, then presented the members of each to the members of the other. After the luncheon, which took place at 1:30, the President went ashore and his departure was followed by that of the Japanese, leaving the Russians, who were transferred to the Dolphin which embarked for Portsmouth, leaving the Russians on the Mayflower. The two vessels sailed about 2:30 for Portsmouth, conveyed by the cruiser Galveston.

Preparations for Reception of Peace Envoys Complete in Every Detail.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Portsmouth, N. H., August 5.—Preparations for the reception and entertainment of the peace envoys are complete in every detail. The tentative program is that the plenipotentiaries shall land at the navy yard and go immediately to the office of the commandant to pay their respects. The arrival of the two missions will be heralded by the firing of an ambassadorial salute for each mission. The marine guard will render the prescribed salutes, and escort the party from the navy yard through the town of Portsmouth to the envoys' quarters at the Wentworth, a distance of about five miles.

Governor McLean will receive the delegates at Portsmouth and formally welcome them to the state. At the same time he will extend to them an invitation to be the guests of the state on a tour of the New Hampshire mountains upon the conclusion of the negotiations. The state of New Hampshire will bear the entire expense of entertaining the plenipotentiaries, as the Government bore the expense of equipping the quarters for the conference. The navy general store, while architecturally rather a plain building of brick and steel construction, has just been completed, and is admirably suited for use as a meeting place.

UNCLE SAM IS NOW IN CHARGE

Of The Yellow Fever Situation At New Orleans...President Acts Promptly

ON CITIZENS' APPEAL FOR AID

Surgeon General Wyman Has Orders To Use Every Means
In His Power To Meet Existing Crisis.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-MORAE.]

New Orleans, Aug. 5.—At ten-thirty this morning official report four deaths but no new cases.
People here are rejoicing over the fact that the United States government is to take charge of the fever situation. "The city is receiving the first real cleaning it has had since Gen. Butler cleaned it during the Civil War. Local pride is forgotten, and all agree it is best that the federal government should be in control."

Washington, Aug. 5.—In response to the appeal of the business and professional interests of New Orleans, made through Gov. Blanchard of Louisiana, for aid, President Roosevelt Friday night sent a telegram to Surgeon General Wyman of the public health and marine hospital service, notifying him to take charge of the yellow fever situation at New Orleans. The president's message follows:

Appeal to President.

Have received the following telegram from Gov. Blanchard of Louisiana: "At a joint meeting of representatives of all commercial bodies of the city of New Orleans and other prominent persons, at which were present the mayor of the city, the state health authorities, and the president of the Orleans Parish Medical association, the following resolution was adopted: "That this meeting indorse the proposition to ask the United States government to take control of the yellow fever situation in New Orleans, and that the governor of the state and the mayor of the city be requested to take steps to carry out this proposition into effect."

"Further, that the hearty co-operation of the state and city governments and the state and city health boards and of the merchants and people generally be pledged. Such action as may be taken by the government."

"I am requested by the mayor of the city, the presidents of the state and city boards of health, and by a committee of prominent citizens to transmit the above resolution to you and request you to take over on behalf of the federal government, through the proper channels, the yellow fever situation at New Orleans. This I do now, and urge speedy action on your part."

"N. C. BLANCHARD.
Governor of Louisiana."

Government Takes Charge.
"Please take every step in your power to meet the situation at New Orleans, and comply with the request of the governor and the other authorities and notify me what further action is advisable and possible for the federal authorities to take. Would like full report from you as to what should be done. Please confer with the surgeons general of the army and navy if in your judgment this is wise."

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

Dr. Wyman will confer with Secretary Shaw, the surgeons in the marine hospital service, and others as to the best course to pursue on Gov. Blanchard's request and on their conclusions Dr. Wyman's report to the president will be based.

MINE LEADERS FEAR A STRIKE IMPENDS

Passing of the Dividend by Pittsburg Consolidated and Statement of Directors Forebodes Trouble.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 5.—Coal operators and miners' leaders read between the lines of the statement by the directors of the Pittsburg Consolidated Coal Company, explaining why a dividend has been skipped, a declaration of war for the joint conference at Indianapolis in January of the operators and miners of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and the Pittsburg field, when an agreement is to be made for the year beginning April 1, 1906. The directors say that the business of the big company suffered "on account of unprecedented competition in the bituminous trade in which your officers had to meet very low prices made by competitors and in adjoining fields in order to retain business."

"The competitors employ non-union labor and at a lower scale of wages than is paid to the union labor employed by the Pittsburg company, whose payroll is equal to that of all the mines in Indiana. For years the Pittsburg and some of the Ohio operators have been insisting that the United Mineworkers should bring West Virginia and the other non-union mines in Pennsylvania, producing bituminous coal, up to the standard of wages in the interstate agreement territory. The United Mineworkers have had organizers in the West Virginia field for years, but almost without effect."

The development of the West Virginia field is rapidly increasing the output, until soon it will overwhelm the western and northwestern markets, which have been held in sections by the operators who were parties to the interstate agreement. There is no doubt now that President Frank Robins of the Pittsburg company will deliver an ultimatum at Indianapolis to the effect that he must have a mining price on something like even terms with the West Virginia operators or a guaranty that the West Virginia operators be forced to pay the union scale, else he will no longer be a party to the agreement with the United Mineworkers.

"Tabard" Inn.
The old tavern immortalized by Chaucer as the "Tabard," was burned down in the great London fire of 1676. On its restoration the name was changed to the "Tabot" or Dog, under which name it remained until about 1872, when it was demolished and a glaring ginshop, called as though in mockery, "The Old Tabard," was erected in its place.

BUMPER CORN CROP BOOM TO BUSINESS

Trade Activity is Greatly Accelerated by Reports Coming Out of West.

Chicago, Aug. 5.—The weekly review of trade in the Chicago district published by the R. G. Dun & C. mercantile agency says:

"Growing crops progressed satisfactorily with the last week's fine weather and while rain is needed at a few points, early sown corn promises to be unusually heavy. Harvesting thus far makes a good exhibit and marketing has increased. The excellent agricultural conditions impart a wider tendency toward further commercial activity, new demands being more diversified, and prices firmer for manufactured products. Increasing earnings of western roads reflect an expanding movement of commodities and forwarding of mill and factory output reaches exceptional tonnage."

Shippers Are Kept Busy.

"Receipts gain in ore, forest products, hides, and live stock, while the aggregate quantity of grain handled is fully one-half more than that of the corresponding week last year. The markets for raw material continue active and high cost is sustained, except the leading cereals, which declined moderately under large supplies. Packing house products and hogs turned dearer, the monthly statement of provision stocks having shown more shrinkage than expected."

"Distributive trade is making seasonal headway. Retail dealings steadily have diminished midsummer stocks here and in the country, and this has led to some reordering. Jobbing branches in staple goods are seen to be brisk with the new buying for early delivery. Interior merchants have arrived in large numbers and their booking compare favorably with those of a year ago in dry goods, furniture, men's furnishings, and textile fabrics. Mercantile collections show well and defaults remain lower."

Grain and Provisions.

"Grain and provisions recorded large transactions, the former being affected by increasing offering and the latter by sharply reduced available stocks. Flour was in better demand, but yet suffers from poor export conditions. The total quantity of grain handled at this port was 9,903,176 bushels, of which the receipts were 6,509,787 bushels and the shipments 3,393,389 bushels, an increase in the former of 72 per cent and in the latter of 33 per cent over those of a year ago."

"Receipts of live stock, 264,188 head, compare with 227,351 last week and 219,663 head a year ago."

MADE ASSEMBLY
HERE POSSIBLE

HARRY M. HOLBROOK INSTITUTED
JANESVILLE CHAUTAUQUA.

IS NOW SUPERINTENDING IT

Crowl's Impersonations of Davy Crockett Last Evening Delighted Many.

(By Clarence Van Beynum.)
Gazette Headquarters, Chautauqua Grounds.—For the great success which has attended the Janesville Chautauqua, both in the merit of the program and the size of the audiences, much credit is due one man in particular, Harry M. Holbrook.
With but an exceedingly short time to arouse interest, form an association and book talent, he instituted the Assembly and is now efficiently acting as manager. The local organization is most fortunate in having Mr. Holbrook to superintend, for in him they possess the greatest Chautauqua promoter and manager in the country. Mr. Holbrook has been following this line for the past five years and he has now charge of five Chautauquas and arranges the programs for four others. The cities in which he has charge are Belvidere, Freeport, Sterling, Janesville and Sycamore. Mr. Holbrook represents no lyceum bureau, nor is he agent for any talent, but secures his lecturers, entertainers and musicians from all over the country.

Bureau of His Own.
To all intents and purposes, however, Mr. Holbrook has established an independent bureau of his own. Late this forenoon he stated that he had

H. M. HOLBROOK.

definitely decided on the move and that it would be known as the Holbrook Chautauqua Bureau. Henry R. Rathbone, a Chicago attorney and lecturer, and Mrs. Rathbone, a singer, Miss Gertrude Miller, of Detroit, Mich., a reader, and Miss Mabel Taylor of Chicago, also an elocution-ist, arrived in the city last evening to confer with him regarding possible dates next season. The Oak Park man has evolved a plan for interesting the Baptist Young People's society, the Epworth League, and the Christian Endeavor societies of Chicago in a movement to inaugurate a week's Chautauqua in the Chicago coliseum next spring. After leaving Janesville on Wednesday he will go east to confer with talent included in his plans.

His Plan of a Program.
Mr. Holbrook first visited Janesville, for the purpose of promoting the Chautauqua project here, on March 25. He immediately awakened a widespread interest and after twenty business visits in the city the final arrangements for the holding of the Assembly, now in session at Mole's Grove, were completed. He spent much time in not alone taking care of the business and but also helping in the selection of numbers for the program and his present stay here is to be of about twenty days' duration.
As with all of his programs he followed this plan in arranging for Janesville: The Chautauqua is for the benefit of the community in which it is located, the morning hours being devoted to the educational study, the afternoon sessions to lectures of instruction and the evening to be passed with programs of the lighter type and for the purpose of entertainment.
Sunday are always occupied by three open-air church services, sermon lectures being delivered by noted evangelists, revivalists, reformers or clergymen and sacred music furnished by a concert company with one or more soloists.

Congratulates Janesville.

In regard to how the Janesville Chautauqua compared in all respects to others he knew of, Mr. Holbrook said: "Your Assembly here has been the biggest first year Chautauqua that I have ever in my whole experience seen and the people of Janesville are to be congratulated for their support of this educational and entertaining program." Mr. Holbrook has a five-year contract with the local association and the program he promises for next year is stronger than the one nearly completed. There will be plenty of time to make bookings and the best of talent to be had at any Chautauqua can be brought here for he has control of some of the greatest platform lecturers, entertainers, singers and musical concert organizations.

Crowl's Impersonation.
Denton C. Crowl last evening scored a success with his impersonations of Davy Crockett, the great Tennessee colonel and statesman, defender of Texas and hero of Alamo. His entertainment was divided into six acts each representing some scene in the man's life, as follows:

Congress—House of Representatives—Crockett's great speech defeating a bill for unconstitutional appropriation of the public money.

Crockett opposing President Jackson—the threat—Davy's answer: "I'd rather be politically damned than to be hypocritically immortalized."

Home life in Tennessee near a hundred years ago. Crockett's wondrous philosophical sayings—An Indian's great speech.

Awaiting election returns—Crockett et's funny stories—Crockett defeated by unfair means—"I'm going ahead!"
—Off to Texas.

In Texas—Crockett explains successful politics to his friends, Capt.
Travis, Col. Jim Bowie, Sam Houston.
An old Western city and dance.

The Battle of Alamo—Death of Crockett. "This brave defense took place in 1836 and the reproduction was entirely from the imagination, as no witness to that battle ever lived to tell of it. The Mexicans numbered 4,000, the Texans 183. "There-mortal" will be remembered in history. It was the pass in the mountains where the brave little Spartan band withstood a Roman army. There were eyes who lived to tell of that scene; of the Alamo—none. The only near authentic report of the fight is from a Mexican source and this is very meager, but from what we learn there is no question but what the man with "the long gun" who was so feared by the Mexicans in that fight was David Crockett.

Mr. Crowl's impersonations were excellently fine and from the very words of the speaker could be gathered the pictures of some of those most interesting scenes of early American history in which the picturesque character of Crockett figured.

Concert and Pictures.
The program of the evening was commenced at half past seven by the Henrons Sisters. Their instrumental music delighted and the solos of Mr.
Arthur Middleton, accompanied by Miss Lulu Jones on the piano, were appreciatively enjoyed. Among the moving pictures presented by Alfred L. Flade was one long film, showing scenes from the grand production of the great opera, Faust. Other interesting pictures were thrown upon the screen and a number of beautiful color pictures of grand scenery were shown.

KICKERS' KOLUM

"I notice the long needed sidewalk is being laid on the side of the library. I also notice that the hump leading from Park street is three steps above the sidewalk. If these steps are put in they will reach the rear center of the walk. I have heard much comment regarding this idiotic, foolish hump leading to the basement of the library. Why ever put there no one seemingly can guess.
Up four steps, then down four steps.
When moving the old shelves they had to be cut in two before they could be gotten into the basement of the library. Two of the leading members of the library board have long desired digging away this ridiculous hump, making the passage to the basement easy, ingress and egress. Let it be subject and they are many.

Labor Notes

The United Mine Workers of America, Alabama district No. 20, will hold their annual convention in Birmingham beginning on June 12.
It is given out that the furnace companies will not deal with the miner's union at all and will not even receive a committee from that organization.
The strike which started July 1, 1904, in Alabama at the coal mines, is still on, and the furnace companies with the exception of the Alabama Consolidated Coal & Iron Co., have steadfastly declined to treat with the union miners.

The officers of the Grand Lodge of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen have filed in the United States

REBUKE FOR THE SLOTHFUL NEGRO

DRONES MUST LEAVE HIVE, SAYS
REV. T. B. STOVALL.

EMANCIPATION DAY TALK

By Colored Pastor of Beloit Sounded Inspiring Note—Great Day at Ho-no-nè-gah.

Yesterday's celebration of Emancipation Day at Ho-no-nè-gah park will long be remembered by the hundreds of colored people and their white brethren who participated in the festivities. The good time was inaugurated by the beautiful dinner served at noon. Afterwards there came a series of athletic contests and a baseball game in which the Rockford Giants decisively defeated the Beloit Sluggers. The addresses delivered by the several speakers were inspiring and the one by Rev. T. B. Stovall of Beloit on "The Future of the Race" offered much food for serious reflection.

Industry a Lighthouse.
The future of the negro, he said, depends on the same principles that have made the white race the leading people of the world. "We are citizens and must prove ourselves worthy of American citizenship. First, there must be love for independence, righteousness and virtue. We need, in this age of the race's crisis, to produce many men and virtuous women. Industry and frugality are the light-houses to which we should steer the old ship of life. Human nature is human nature the world over, and that which is injurious to the negro in one part of this great American republic is alike injurious to him in all parts. Those principles that elevate and place the negro high in the estimation of the northern whites will place him just as high in the estimation of the southern white brother. If we would have a glorious future, we must set the goal now. There must be a weeding out and a line drawn. The working bees must sting the drones out of the hive. We deny that all negroes are alike, and we must prove to the world that there is a difference, by bringing to the front, all over the country, the best of the race and letting them be held up as examples of the race.

Appeal to Young Men.
"There must be more respect and greater love manifested for wives and children. We appeal to our young men of this age to let your aim be to become husbands in the truest sense of the word. Young women, we ask you to be virtuous and worthy wives and mothers, that we who are men may be justified in wading in blood for your protection. I have endorsed the white man for the respect he has for the virtuous women of his race. In fact, there is no hope for a future except we have virtuous women and many men for a foundation. Marriage is honorable, and, as we are a separate and distinct race, we should marry among ourselves. As a race, we must stop trying to get away from the race. Let us step out as men who have race pride, build homes, raise families, till the soil, sell ships, own railroad stock, get in the whirlpool of business, and be a power in the world. Let us be proud that we are negroes, and not ashamed of our color. Come out from the slothful, the careless, and the unconcerned. Be contented until we find our places as workmen, and fill those places, and prove ourselves heroes. Beautify some spot in the world with your intellect and stability. This will lead the race onward and upward to a glorious future.

Race Must Work.
Work. As a race, we cannot afford to be idle. We must be employed. There are too many young men and young women doing absolutely nothing, and who are perfectly happy. Such negroes as these are a menace, in whatever section of the country they are, let it be the north or south, east or west. We, as a race, much discussed as to criminality can not afford to commit crime. As a race, we are too ready to dagger one another. There is not peace and harmony enough within our own quarters. Industry and confidence must be the mottoes of the race. I have said that human nature is human nature the world over. I mean that the industrious, conscientious, upright and respectful negro is held in as high esteem in the south as he is in the north. The north holds out open arms to the thrifty and trustworthy negro but there is no place for the idle and "good time" negro. And this is the trouble in the south—too many idle and "good time" boys and girls. Too many would-be ladies and gentlemen. We want men and women who are employed three hundred and sixty-five days through the year.

Let us come home and see what the condition is in ourselves and our town. What have we to put on exhibition for the race's future? What has Rock county got? What has Beloit got? Please answer. We, as negroes, are continually asserting that we are, as a race, very progressive and worthy of many compliments. But I fear the young negro is trusting too much in the old man's record, instead of making one for himself. It is true that the greatest study of man is man. It occurs to me that we ought to examine ourselves often, that we may prove all we assert.

Bargains in Used Steinway Pianos.
If you know of anyone who wishes a very good piano at a moderate cost, he will be interested in the fact that just at the present time the well-known music house of Lyon & Healy, Chicago, have a large saleroom filled entirely with used Steinway Uprights. These Steinways embrace a wide variety of instruments. All of them, of course, are genuine Steinways, and all of them are in fine condition, but there is a great difference in the cost. Some of these Steinways have had considerable use, and have been overhauled at the factory, and are now offered at very moderate prices indeed, while others are practically new and of course command within $100 of the regular price.

Among these bargains of Steinways are quite a number of ebony finished instruments, several in rosewood and some in mahogany cases. These Steinway pianos will be sold either for cash or upon very easy monthly payments. Freight on an upright piano is only a matter of a few dollars. All of the instruments are fully guaranteed to be exactly as represented. The opportunity to secure one will undoubtedly be taken advantage of by the shrewd buyers in this vicinity.
A letter to Lyon & Healy, 10 Adams St., Chicago, will bring full particulars.

VAN HISE SAYS
RUMOR NOT TRUE

WILL NOT PREVENT EXTRA WORK
BY THE PROFESSORS.

IT MERELY AFFECTS A FEW

His General Administration Policy is Not One of Cutting Off the Extras.

Madison, Wis.—President C. R. Van Hise declares that the restrictions placed upon minor instructors in the music department of the university are not determined upon by him as the general administrative policy of the university, nor is he willing at this time to submit to an interview as to whether or not these "exclusive service" restrictions will be confined to Professor E. A. Bredin and Professor Herman T. Owen, and not extended in their application to the leading professors who make thousands of dollars a year aside from their regular state-provided salaries, by serving outside interests. From a statement sent out by President Van Hise yesterday it is apparent that he does not like the fact that the application of this policy to the music department has become public information, and much less does he like the fact that suggestions have been made that the policy be applied uniformly to all departments and members of the faculty and staff of instruction. It is not pleasing to Dr. Van Hise that "irresponsible" persons have jumped at the conclusion that the same doctrine would be applied to Professor W. D. Taylor, who drew $2,000 a year as advisor to the state tax commission in addition to his university salary, or to C. S. Stichler, who makes more as an irrigation engineer than he does as a professor of applied mathematics, as has been applied to Professor E. A. Bredin's $100 service or Professor Herman T. Owen's similar service to the Madison board of education. Some papers misstated the matter, by formulating the doctrine of exclusive service as applied to the musicians by President Van Hise and attributing that language to him as a quoted interview. He says now that such a purported interview is a pure fabrication.

The two music instructors performed their work for the board of education satisfactorily, but when the claim came up before the board of education for allowance it was suggested that the money be appropriated as a "cash item" in favor of Superintendent Dudgeon, as information had come from President Van Hise, through Professor F. A. Parker, head of the university school of music, that the board must not pay university instructors, as their time is already employed and paid for by the university. Municipal Judge Anthony Donovan, president of the board, objected to this as savoring of "under-handed methods" and the money was directly appropriated to the persons for which it was intended, J. T. W. Jennings, the state university architect, who is also a member of the board of education, was also in favor of paying directly for the work notwithstanding the objections of the university officials.

It is possible that President Van Hise will make a public statement for the benefit of the public who support the university with taxes amounting to nearly a million dollars a year, showing to what extent members of the university faculty have drawn state pay from various avenues or have drawn large incomes for outside work while supposed to be given a full salary for services to the university, but at present it appears that he does not consider these facts as abuses of the public service and also that they are not within his province to interfere with. Nevertheless the disclosures recently made, and many other facts of similar nature which are of common knowledge here, are being freely discussed and it is not unfair to state that the prevailing sentiment would be in favor of a uniform application of the policy applied to the unimportant instructors in music. It is remarked that the regents, in hiring faculty members, consider that they pay full salaries for full service, for there are instances in which meager salaries are paid good men for "half service," the understanding being that the man so hired is not exclusively in the service of the university.

DANDRUFF CAUSED BY A GERM.
A New Discovery That Kills the Germ and Prevents Baldness.

Pretty nearly all the hair preparations for dandruff have some merit in allaying itching of the scalp, and in being a fairly good dressing for the hair, but there is only one that recognizes what causes dandruff, kills the cause, a little germ—that is Newbro's Herpicide. This germ eats its way into the scalp, it digs up the scalp into little white scales. Unless it is destroyed there's no permanent stopping of falling hair and cure of dandruff and baldness. Newbro's Herpicide kills the germ. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 1c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

THE PEACE COMMISSION'S PERSONNEL

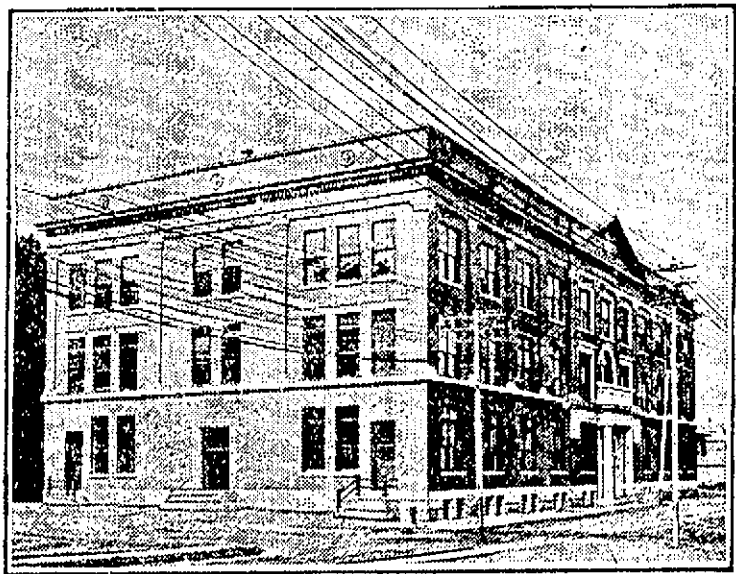

Notable Characteristics and Achievements of the Participants in a Momentous Conference.

All Are Diplomats of the Most Persuasive Order and Renowned Statesmen of Long Standing.

Portsmouth, New Hampshire's Aristocratic City by the Sea, Where Meetings of the Commission Will Be Held, Is Noted For Historic Associations.

THE meeting of a peace commission on American soil is a new thing. It bears out what the Brazilian ambassador said the other day—that the United States is growing taller among the nations every year. Aside from the humanitarian interest involved, the fact that Russia and Japan are to settle their differences here and that they meet to do so at the initiative of the American president is a distinct feather in our diplomatic cap. Perhaps it is not quite becoming to boast of a thing like that, but we Americans have such a habit of patting ourselves on the backs that no especial resentment can be felt at our doing so in this instance.

Treaty of Washington. The peace treaty, if the negotiations reach a successful conclusion, will be known officially as the treaty of Washington, as it will be signed in the capital of the nation. As a matter of fact, it should be called the Portsmouth treaty, for in the historical New Hampshire town by the sea will all the negotiations be held.

EQUIPMENT BUILDING, PORTSMOUTH, N. H. WHERE PEACE CONFERENCES WILL BE HELD.

ings of the commission be held. Here is located the government navy yard, from which many of the old time fighting vessels were launched. Near here also are many summer resort hotels and an Atlantic cable station, besides other conveniences. In one of the hotels, the commodious Westworth, the peace envoys and their suits will be quartered. They will be the guests of Judge Calvin Page of Portsmouth, who will have the privilege of paying all bills for their entertainment. The meetings will be held in the new equipment building at the Portsmouth navy yard, which is situated on an island in the mouth of the Piscataqua river, which stream forms the boundary line between New Hampshire and Maine. The second floor of this building has a large room for bookkeepers, with ante-chambers attached, and in this room the commission is to sit. To insure its privacy a detachment of United States marines will be placed on guard, and no one not entitled to do so will be permitted to land on the island. The peace envoys and their attendants will travel from the hotel to the island on the president's yacht, the Mayflower, assigned to their use. If a number of peace commissioners, lodged in a commodious hotel like the Westworth, with some one else paying the freight, given a pleasant ocean trip each day, meeting on an island fronting the beautiful and aristocratic city of Portsmouth, with the odorous pines of Maine and New Hampshire surrounding them and cooled by the mild summer climate of the north Atlantic shore—if a commission so circumstanced cannot get together and reach an amicable understanding, then there is no hope for the final reign of peace on this troubled old earth.

Thomas Bailey Aldrich, in an invaluable description of Portsmouth, of its historic atmosphere and the spirit of the place, called it "Rivermouth." This, the only port of New Hampshire, has a natural harbor, a fine, quiet strip of water lying among the New Hampshire hills. It is a very old town. Here the colonial and revolutionary state governors used to live and here many of them are buried. It was here also that one of the governors, an irascible but popular old widower—popular for the large share of human nature that was in him—married one of the poor girls of the town who was serving as a maid in his household. Such a nice days' wonder and food for gossip was this episode that it still juts out of the history of the town like a hill out of a plain. There are many Revolutionary houses yet standing in Portsmouth and many other fine old places built in the early days of the republic. Here Washington stopped, for was not his private secretary, Tobias Lear, a citizen of the town? Here also Daniel Webster lived during four years of his early life, and the Webster house is still pointed out as one of the landmarks of the city by the sea. It is even probable that the youth who was afterward to become the "red-tape Daniel" dreamed of future greatness among these hills. It is not recorded that, like Demosthenes, he walked up and down the beach, ruminating orations with his mouth full of pebbles. Perhaps the Websterian voice did not need this sort of training. At any rate, the Yankee Demosthenes held very lively and affectionate memories of Portsmouth and the New Hampshire hills.

But it was not alone for historic associations that the peace commission was sent to Portsmouth. Washington, for the matter of that, has all the historic background needed as a setting for the affair; but, then, Washington also has a quality not so desirable—heat. The heat of the Capital City in August—but why add to the burdens of an already perspiring public by descriptions of this sort? Suffice it to say that Washington in dog days is much too hot for human beings, especially for human beings from as near the north pole as St. Petersburg, to endure.

The personnel of the commission is quite as interesting as its surroundings. De Witte, Rosen, Komura, Takahira. These are names with which to conjure in the respective realms of the czar and the mikado. They are all diplomats of the most persuasive order and statesmen of long standing, besides being counts, barons and what not.

Stickler for the Autocracy. De Witte—Russians call it Day Vityay, by the way, and Englishmen call it most anything—is the best known on the list. There have been times that he was the most powerful man in Russia. But he opposed the granting of the grand dukes and that precious cabal humiliated him. He also opposed the present war, a fact that makes him popular with the Japanese. De Witte statecraft and will be able to hold up the Japanese end of the negotiations even against a De Witte. Baron Komura was educated at Harvard, graduating from the law course there in 1877. He afterward took a course in a New York law office, making a specialty of international law. He then returned to Japan, intending to enter the judiciary, but instead was switched to a diplomatic career. He held various minor positions and was secretary of legation at Peking just before the war with China. He was later minister to Korea, then assistant minister of foreign affairs and still later minister to the United States during the Spanish-American war. He next went as minister to St. Petersburg, from which post he was called home to become minister of foreign affairs in the Katsura cabinet. As such he handled all the difficult negotiations leading up to the war with Russia and was hailed as the man of the hour in Japan.

A Master of Statecraft. Komura is a small, slight man, quiet, refined and polished and a master of the diplomatic game. He still holds the foreign affairs portfolio in the Japanese cabinet, and the fact that he was chosen as the plenipotentiary of his country to arrange the terms of peace shows the importance that his country places on these negotiations. It would not trust them in the hands of a lesser man.

The two other members of the commission are the Russian and Japanese ministers to the United States. Baron Roman Romanovich Rosen, who recently succeeded Count Cassini as the czar's ambassador at Washington, and Mr. Kogoro Takahira, who succeeded Komura as the mikado's representative in the United States in 1900.

A Genial Baron Loved in Japan. Baron Rosen is something of a jolly fellow. He has held all sorts of offices in Russia, one of the most important having been that of state counselor. He belongs to the aristocracy, and his wife is the daughter of one of the provincial governors. Baron Rosen practically started his diplomatic career in Japan, having been an attaché of the legation there in the early days. Though seemingly a sad eyed and pensive youth, he had been known as a high roller in St. Petersburg, and he lived up to that reputation in a quiet way at Tokyo. He was giving all sorts of social entertainments to the Japanese when other foreign diplomats held aloof. As a result he got on such good terms with the little brown officials that he wheedled them out of the island of Sakhalin. It is one of the ironies of fate that the baron will now be called upon to reconcile this island to the Japanese as one of the fruits of the present war. It is related of Rosen that he got on such good terms with the Japanese statesmen in those old days that he ordered a complete outfit from Paris for one of their wives. She, poor, innocent soul, not knowing how to don the costume, got the nether garments outside the dress, with an effect more sensational than conventional. It was Baron Rosen, by the way, who was minister at Tokyo before the outbreak of the war. Despite the loss of Sakhalin and the present unpleasantness, the genial baron is loved in Japan.

Kogoro Takahira is the only plain "mister" in the bunch. Even De Witte is a count. That is the way he got the "de" in his name. Takahira looks something like Rudyard Kipling—is a square, chunky sort of man, who is business from the word "go," who works and schemes much and talks little. He is a good listener, however. One of the American papers cartooned him as having a padlock on his mouth and both hands hollowed out behind his ears. Takahira, though so quiet, is a wit upon occasion. When asked why President Roosevelt had suddenly stopped taking jiu jitsu lessons, he said he did not know, but probably it was because Cassini, the Russian ambassador, regarded it as a breach of neutrality.

Negotiations in French.

In addition to these four interesting commissioners there will be a large number of attachés, secretaries, interpreters and other attendants. There is considerable red tape about a peace treaty, as in other affairs diplomatic, and it requires a large number of people to take care of it. All the commissioners except De Witte speak English like natives, but the peace negotiations will be carried on in French, of which all of them are masters. It is a momentous conference, this one on our northeastern coast. It will rearrange the geography of the far east and settle the control of that section for generations to come.

OSTEOPATHIC NOTES

That You May Know of Osteopathy and What it is Doing For Humanity.

Osteopaths cure headaches and backaches.

Osteopathy is practical, if anything, as well as exact and precise.

Opie Reed has called osteopathic treatment "the champagne of nature."

Don't suffer with indigestion when osteopathy offers you a quick and permanent cure.

Osteopathy is not based upon chance or conjecture, it is an exact science.

Yes, osteopaths treat stomach troubles; and treat them successfully too.

Osteopathy treats diseases by restoring good order throughout the human organism.

Take the pressure off the pinched nerves and remove obstructions to the circulation is what Osteopaths do.

It means something that two-thirds of the states of this union have recognized osteopathy by statutory enactment.

The pains of neuralgia are the effects of pressure on a sensory nerve. Osteopathy by removing the pressure quickly relieves the pain.

The blindness of the enemies of osteopathy is less than the enthusiasm of its friends should teach you to investigate it for yourself.

If you do not thoroughly understand the principles and practice of osteopathy call any accredited osteopath and he will properly enlighten you.

Osteopathy has been subjected to the supreme test—has been tried in the crucible of actual experience. It cures people and after all is that not all that should be required.

One actual demonstration is worth a life time of argument. The simple truths of osteopathy are being demonstrated in the treating room every day.

We are gradually getting around to exercise for health and the Osteopath is driving pill and lancet into retirement, says the New York Press.

Thinking people are getting more and more into the way of taking their little ones to the osteopath that he may see that they develop along proper anatomical lines. (To be continued.)

Is Better Than Two Afterwards. A Chance to Profit By a Jamesville Man's Experience.

It is a strange thing how people will put away an opportunity until too late; it's only little things that go to make up our every day existence; the trouble is we don't pay sufficient attention to them. Backache is a little thing. Sometimes it comes after a hard day's work or a slight cold. It will pass off, you say; it's only the result of overtaxing my back. It isn't the fault of your back but your kidneys. The exertion or straining has interfered with their delicate mechanism. You call it backache, but it really is kidney ache. If the kidneys are not relieved, chronic disorders set in and this is where the "little thing" should not be passed over. A Jamesville man has learned to appreciate what delay means.

Mr. H. W. Rodgers, carpenter of 210 South Main street says "My wife had kidney complaint and rheumatism for five years suffering a great deal from pain across the joints. Doan's Kidney Pills, sold by the People's Drug Co., brought much longed for and gratifying results. First there was no visible change and she came to the conclusion that they were like all other remedies she had tried but finally the aching and the distress in the small of the back disappeared."

TRUE
Before Mother's Friend was introduced.

The older the prospective mother be the more difficult the ordeal through which she must pass before she experiences the glory of the maternal state.

This was true before

Old or young, the result is the same. It is simply indispensable during the maternal state, and absolutely invaluable at the crucial time.

Over the Border

By ...
ROBERT BARR.

Copyright, 1903, by Frederick A. Stokes Co.

Author of "Jennie Baxter," Journalist, etc.

With that he invited her to a seat in the parlor and sent a messenger for De Courcy, knowing there would be prompt response when the Frenchman learned that a beautiful lady awaited him, and in this he was not mistaken. De Courcy came as a nobleman and as well groomed as usual, twirling his light mustache and doffing his hat with a grand air when he saw his hostess.

"I wish to see his majesty again," said Frances, rising. "But they detain me at the gate, and I have no one to vouch for me unless you will be so kind, though I am sorry to trouble you."

"To pleasure me, mademoiselle, you must mean, 'Is an unequal country, as I have always said, when they keep me at a waiting.' Such a boorish act is not conceivable in France. Most honored and I to be your sponsor, and it gratifies me to tell you that the king is at present disengaged. I beg you to accompany me."

The friend of the queen did not even trouble to make any explanation to the captain of the guard, and he was too powerful a courtier to have anything he did questioned by the underlings. It was palpable that the officer had small liking for him, but who could fear of his influence in high places.

As the two crossed the yard toward the young man said with the greatest affability:

"Would you prefer to see the king alone or in company?"

"Oh, alone, if it be possible."

"Quite possible. I shall delight in arranging a private interview and am sure his majesty will not refuse my request. If you do not wish to meet any of the court I can take you to him by a private route where we are almost certain to encounter none."

"I shall be deeply indebted to you."

They threaded their way through devious and labyrinthine passages, turning now to the right, now to the left, sometimes ascending a few steps and sometimes a narrow stairway, until at last the guide came to a door, which he pushed open.

"If you will wait here for a moment, I will go and fetch the king."

He bowed gracefully as she passed through the doorway, entering a square room, the walls of which were decorated by groups of swords and rapiers of various sorts; a veritable armory. A table occupied the center, and there were several chairs, with a lounge against the wall. A door opened upon an inner room. De Courcy, instead of taking his departure, stepped in quickly and closed the door, and turned the key in the lock. With the grating of the key came the first suspicion to the mind of Frances that her guide was treacherous. Much as she had always distrusted him, it seemed incredible that, knowing her to be the daughter of the Earl of Stratford, anything disastrous might befall her here in the very palace of the king, the sworn protector of his people. The leer on De Courcy's face and his words speedily disillusioned her.

"If you will be seated, my dear, we may have some converse, interesting and entertaining to us both. You can scarcely imagine my joy at seeing so lovely a visitor in my poor apartments."

"Sir, you said you would bring the king. A gentleman keeps his word."

"Oh, the king is good time, my pretty one. Charles is but a doleful companion just now, and we are well quit of him. As for a man's word, the fashion seems to be the breaking of it, example being set by poor gentlemen in the highest places. For instance, our last discussion related to marriage, but times have changed since that day, and you will not be so cruel as to expect me to carry out the good domestic intentions I then expressed."

"Sir, I am very glad I shall hear no more of them."

"Truly? Then so much the better. I expected tears and reproaches, but am pleased you are not given to complaining. By my honor, I love you the more for it. So, then, I'll steal a kiss from those ripe lips to seal the new compact we are to make, and I warn you that a scream is not likely to be heard from this chamber."

"I need not your warning. You shall neither hear me scream nor see me weep."

"By St. Denis, I like your spirit. Some scream and some weep, but they all end by clinging."

"Sir, a warning for your warning. Approach not another step nearer me. Stand aside, rather, and allow me to quit this place as freely as I ignorantly came hither."

"And if I cannot consent?"

"Then 'twould be the worse for you."

"You spur an inclination already highly metted. Still would I treat you with all courtesy. You are a nameless woman, and many of the highest dames in England are proud to call me their friend."

"That I believe to be as untrue as 'none saying I am a nameless woman.' Nevertheless one is as true as the other. Your father never acknowledged you."

"He has been burdened with more important affairs, but he will do so when he is free."

During this dialogue the participants had been constantly changing their positions. De Courcy advancing and Frances retreating, keeping the table between them. The girl's design was plain enough. She desired to hold him in conversation, gradually shifting her position, until she got between him and the door, when a sudden dash might give her freedom. But he easily fathomed this design and laughed as he checked it. At her last words, however, he drew himself upright, a look of genuine amazement overspreading his face.

"When he is free?" he echoed. "Power of heaven! Then you have not come to reproach the king, but to plead with him?"

"Why should I reproach him?"

"It would surely be useless enough, but feminine. Why? Because Gregory Brantford, with one good stroke, severed the king's word and Stratford's neck on Tower Hill this morning."

The girl's face went white as the kerchief about her throat, and, swaying half an instant, she leaned against the table for support. Something in the brutal method of the announcement convinced her of its truth more surely than if he had spoken with all the solemnity of which he might be capable. Yet she struggled not to believe.

"You are lying to me," she gasped.

"Far from it, my little lady. How could I imagine you did not know? You are surely the only person in London who is ignorant of it. Why is everything so quiet near Whitehall, where the generous citizens have been so solicitous about us of late? Merely because the center of interest has changed to the other end of the town, and a rare show was put on the stage for all good people to see, free of cost to themselves, unless they have the brains to know of what they are bereft by Stratford's death, which is most unlikely."

Merely because the center of interest has changed to the other end of the town, and a rare show was put on the stage for all good people to see, free of cost to themselves, unless they have the brains to know of what they are bereft by Stratford's death, which is most unlikely."

"You are lying to me," she gasped.

"Far from it, my little lady. How could I imagine you did not know? You are surely the only person in London who is ignorant of it. Why is everything so quiet near Whitehall, where the generous citizens have been so solicitous about us of late? Merely because the center of interest has changed to the other end of the town, and a rare show was put on the stage for all good people to see, free of cost to themselves, unless they have the brains to know of what they are bereft by Stratford's death, which is most unlikely."

first across the brow, then down the face. Nothing could well be more terrible than the weapon she had used, for the jagged iron tore his flesh like the stroke of a tiger's claw. The red cross showed for a brief moment, then was obliterated in a crimson flood. "Cowardly poltroon, wear the brand of Cain!"

He had warned her not to scream, but now his own cries filled the room as he staggered back, his hands to his face. Yet, grievously wounded as he was, he seemed resolved she should not escape him and, after the first shock, gripped blindly for her. She clung the broken weapon to the further side of the room, and the noise of its fall turned him thither, striking against the table and then against a chair. She tiptoed cautiously to the door, turned the key and threw it open before he could recover himself, for he had lost all sense of direction and could see nothing. She took the immediate risk of drawing the key from the door to ward off the greater danger of pursuit, and calmly looked him in the face. If screams were as ineffectual as he had insisted, he would take little good from his battering of the door for some time to come. Frances now threaded her way through the maze of passages, meeting no one, for the gloom of death pervaded the palace, at least in the direction she had taken.

She dared not hurry in spite of the urging of her quickly beating heart, but must proceed leisurely, as if she had a perfect right to be where she was, should any inquisitive servant encounter her. At last, with a deep breath, she emerged upon the great courtyard and so came to the gate. The officer bowed to her, and she paused for a moment to thank him for his kindness to her in the earlier part of the day.

"Is it true—that that Lord Stratford?" She could get no further.

"Yes, my lady, and grieved we all are that it should be so. This morning on Tower Hill. The lords refused a reprieve even until Saturday."

Frances bent her head and struggled with herself to repress undue emotion, but finding that impossible turned abruptly and walked fast down Whitehall.

"Her bright eyes, bless her," said the officer to a comrade, "are not the only ones dimmed with tears for this morning's work."

On reaching the inn Frances thought of waiting for the faithful Volins, but she had not the heart to meet him nor the inclination to rest another night in the city now so hateful to her. She wrote a letter which was forwarded to him by a messenger, but said nothing of her visit to Whitehall, telling him his estimate of De Courcy had been correct, promising to send the thousand pounds to be replaced in her father's treasury as soon as she reached her home in the north, and asking pardon that his counsel had been declined.

Two hours later Frances was on her way to the north. She paused on Highgate hill and looked back on the label she had left, vast and dim in the rising mist of the mild spring evening. "Oh, cruel city! Oh, faithless man! The bloodthirst of London may be whetted and not quenched, perjured king of England!" She bowed her head to her horse's mane and wept helplessly.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are a most remarkable remedy for the relief of periodic pains, backache, nervous or sick headache, or any of the distressing aches and pains that cause women so much suffering.

As pain is weakening, and leaves the system in an exhausted condition, it is wrong to suffer a moment longer than necessary, and you should take the Anti-Pain Pills on first indication of an attack.

If taken as directed you may have entire confidence in their effectiveness, as well as in the fact that they will leave no disagreeable after-effects.

They contain no morphine, opium, chloral, cocaine or other dangerous drugs.

"For a long time I have suffered greatly with spells of backache, that came almost more than I can endure. These attacks come on every month, and last two or three days. I have never been able to get anything that would give me much relief until I began to take Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, and they always relieve me in a short time. My sister, who suffers the same way, has used them with the same results."

SOME STRAWS AND THE INTERURBAN

Activity in Several Quarters Indicate That Something Definite Is Soon To Happen.

There are indications in several quarters that before many more months there will be something definite done and known regarding the projected interurban lines between Janesville and Madison. The franchise of the Southern Wisconsin Co. in Janesville expires on November 1. When the extension was granted a few weeks ago the promoters, Messrs. Hayes, and others, stipulated that should any company enter the field in the meantime with a definite proposition they would gracefully surrender their grant. Dennis Hayes, W. G. Wheeler, and Engineer Jackson returned from a trip over the proposed right-of-way early Thursday morning. That is one straw that indicates that the Southern Wisconsin Co. is not yet out of the field. Meanwhile the engineering parties of the R. J. & B. Interurban railroad are busily engaged surveying out their route. That is another straw. Henry Johnson of Edgerton and others state that the most interurban that tries to get through that town will have to furnish heavy bonds guaranteeing that they will really build. That might be called a straw indicating that some of the towns are getting impatient. The strongest indication that something is about to happen comes from Madison where the street car company has suddenly manifested a feverish anxiety to secure the right-of-way for an extension beyond the St. Paul tracks to the fair grounds and Chautauqua grounds. Several South Madison people are opposed to the company's crossing their land and President Montgomery is quoted as saying that if he cannot acquire the desired right-of-way through South Madison by purchase he will abandon that feature of the extension and inaugurate a service for Greenbush over to the south-east. This would seem to indicate that the street railway company wants an outlet to the south and wants it bad and the reason may easily be inferred.

P. J. MOUTAT TOOK MOSQUITO POISON

Janesville Editor Made Serious Mistake in Cough Medicine Bottle at Lake Geneva.

Editor Peter J. Moutat of the Janesville Recorder had an experience at Lake Geneva, Thursday, which might have cost him his life. As it was he had a narrow escape and his family and friends did not recover their composure for several hours. Mr. Moutat was afflicted with a cold and going to a shelf took down what he mistakenly supposed was a bottle of cough medicine. It was not until after he had taken a large draught that it was discovered that the vial contained mosquito poison. As quickly as possible an emetic was secured and a physician sent for. While he was uncomfortable for several hours, Mr. Moutat escaped serious consequences.

CURRENT NEWS NOTES.

Mrs. Weaver Better: Mrs. Arthur Weaver of Clinton who was injured Wednesday evening in a runaway which cost her husband his life, is improving and it is now believed that she will recover.

Good Prediction: At two o'clock yesterday afternoon John Brown made a positive prediction of the half-storm which reached here after midnight. When George Appleby heard of this he acknowledged himself outprophe-sied.

Miss Bernice Walco of Madison is visiting in the city the guest of Miss Letta Dreyer.

Hopeless Case.

In a London bookshop a woman wanted a copy of Browning's works. "I haven't got it, madam," replied the bookseller. "I make it a rule never to keep any books I can't understand, and I can't make head or tail of Mr. Browning." Determined to buy a book anyway, the customer asked: "Have you Præd, then?" "Yes, madam," quoth the bookseller. "I've pruned, and that doesn't help me."

Beauty Without Blemish.

Mme. de Remusat had features so perfect that her contemporaries said she was worthy to sit as a model for a Greek goddess. The flesh of her face closely resembled alabaster and yet she was not pale and did not give the impression of being in delicate health. Her beauty attracted universal attention to her, no matter where she went, and even in old age she retained most of her good looks.

Shave Their Eyelashes.

In one of the London amusement houses are a troop of pigmies who have a curious custom of shaving their eyelashes. After making their usual protest against being compelled to bathe in warm water, the pigmies, instead of shaving the stubble of beard from their faces as white men do, cut off their eyelashes with the razor-like edges of their tiny arrows.

No Faith.

A man expresses the opinion that the reason why so few women attain any great distinction, in the higher walks of life especially, is due in large measure to the small amount of faith they constantly exhibit in their own powers. As a consequence they lack initiative and positively dread responsibility.—Exchange.

Sheep Butts His Reflection.

As a flock of sheep were being driven along Northgate, Darlington, one of the flock noticed his reflection in a plate-glass window. Annoyed by this, the animal lowered his horns and charged, crashing through the glass, and coming to rest amidst a collection of crockery. He was quite unhurt, but damage to the amount of £15 had been done.—London Telegraph.

Life.

Life is a strange combination. Before a boy is old enough to go to school he awakens before day light and wants to get the whole family up. Later it requires the whole family to get the boy up. Still later on he gets back to the early rising period, and again disturbs the peace of the family.—Springfield (Ohio) Sun.

Walks 2,000 Miles for Work.

In giving evidence at Newport, England, recently, George Barris, an iron-works puddler, belonging to South Wales, mentioned that he had walked over 2,000 miles in the last winter looking for work.

Nothing Extraordinary.

A man "who knows it all" was not in the least surprised when he heard of a motor-car which could be turned at will into a bedstead or grand piano. He said he knows a man who turned a motor-car into a telegraph pole, a ditch, a fence and a horse, all within a few hours.—London Answers.

RUSSIAN EXILES TO BE GIVEN FREEDOM

Japan Will Liberate Political Prisoners on the Island of Sakhalien.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Japan will free the thousands of Russian political prisoners who have been exiled to Sakhalien Island.

The island is now in Japan's hands, the Russian garrison of 70 officers and 3,200 men having surrendered July 31, with all guns, ammunition, and military supplies. The flag of Japan now floats unchallenged over practically the entire island.

Sakhalien has been Russia's penal colony for many years. On the island there are between 20,000 and 30,000 convicts. Thousands of these are there as exiles from Russia because of political offenses. Their only crime has been their opposition to the autocracy and the bureaucracy.

Liberty for Exiles.

These exiles will be set at liberty by Japan. All of them who desire to emigrate to foreign lands will be permitted to do so.

The convicts who enlisted as volunteers in the Russian militia will, of course, be treated as prisoners of war.

These provisions will apply to all prisoners, without regard to their nationality, race or origin. Many of the prisoners are Jews, and their compatriots in the United States recently petitioned the Japanese government to grant freedom to "all victims of political oppression" now on the island.

Any of the prisoners who desire to make their homes on the island will be permitted to do so on declaring their allegiance to Japan.

Battle Is Near.

Tokio, Aug. 5.—It is reported that the advance guards of the hostile forces south of the Tumen river are within rifle range. An early conflict is regarded as inevitable.

Japanese Begin Advance.

Godzyadani, Manchuria, Aug. 5.—Dispatches from Korea report that the Japanese have begun a simultaneous advance from Kuanchoferi against Musariel and Patsabang passes, but that both columns were checked under pressure of the Russian advance detachments. The Russian losses, the dispatches say, were insignificant.

Japanese war ships are reported to be cruising off the mouth of Peter the Great bay, on which Vladivostok is situated, their lights often being visible from Russian Island.

Almost tropical rains are falling in Manchuria, and the hilly regions are impassable for trains of artillery. Every mountain path is a torrent, and every valley a quagmire. Important operations, apparently, will be impossible for a long time to come. The alternation of rains and ferid sunshine has a depressing effect on the health of the army.

Too Much for Linevitch.

London, Aug. 5. The Daily Telegraph's Japanese correspondent at Mori comments upon the tremendous extent of Gen. Linevitch's command, including as it does Vladivostok and northern Korea, and doubts the Russian general's ability to have effective control of such a far-extended line, which is unprecedented in the history of the world. He declares that the coming battle, unless it is averted by peace negotiations, will be on such a gigantic scale as to decide the war once and for all.

Dr. McClish Goes East.

San Jose, Cal., Aug. 5.—Dr. Eli McClish, president of the University of the Pacific, has tendered his resignation to the board of control of the Methodist conference, to take effect Aug. 15. He has received a call to a leading Methodist church in Boston and he will go there.

GUARDING AGAINST POISON

Action to Restrict the Sale of Dangerous Drugs in England.

As a protection against drug poisoning, Southampton to the state department, the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain has declared the following articles poisons under the general statute: Cocaine and its salts, picrotoxin, acetanilid, preparations of cocaine, digitalis and its preparations, mercuric iodide, mercuric sulphocyanide, soluble salts of oxalic acid, strychnine and its preparations and sulphonal.

The effects of this action will be that the drugs named, when sold, must be labeled with the word "Poison," and the name and address of the seller; that in the case of liquids, they must be sold only in bottles readily distinguishable by touch from ordinary medicine bottles; that they must be sold by registered chemists and druggists only. In the case of cocaine and its salts and picrotoxin, it will be necessary, in addition to the observance of the precautions stated, that the purchaser be personally known or introduced to the seller, and that his name be signed in the chemist's poison register.

Consul Swalm says that acetanilid, digitalis and sulphonal, in addition to cocaine, are drugs which particularly lend themselves to abuse by the public, and the facility with which it has been possible to buy them in the past has been by no means beneficial.
